WAGNER'S REVIEW

Liverpool Situation.

Liverpool, April 16.—Wheat opened steady with moderate covering on American strength. Later there was pressure and prices declined with liquidation in May on further talk of liberal tenders on contract. Private advice received here report plate grading above expectations with pressure in near Australian parcels and these with freer Manitoba offers and easier cargo offers helped the decline. Russia is expected to ship more freely this week. Corn lower on the Argentine forecast of shipments.

Morning Grain Letter.

Chicago, Ill., April 16.—Good weather for farm work. Temperatures were up to 90 in Texas yesterday and 82 in Kansas. The Foster April hot spell is due. New York wires us that the east is now filled up on Argentine corn bought ahead. April and May shipments are offered at 63 1/2 cents. The enormous Russian 1913 oats crop is another reason for the reduced European feed demand. Local sentiment mixed on corn. Bears have crossed over into the July and September which are certain to run into oversold spots. Cash corn demand still flat. Guesses run about 5,000,000 corn to be delivered quickly at arrival of May. Action of May corn indicates that both longs and shorts are willing to liquidate at these levels. Oats look low enough.

Provision gossip is bearish and ten cent lard is likely. Demand for various kinds of pork is exceedingly poor despite shaded prices. Chicago lard stocks increased 11,000 tierces in first half of April to 117,000 tierces. Plenty of green bugs and insects, but no decided damage as yet. Extension of May wheat premium is due to overdoing of narrowing spreads, the reduced wheat receipts and excellent wheat reports.

The grains promise more reversals of trend. If lower early they should rally. The new wheat crop months should be purchased. They never decline seriously in the April 15 to May 31 period. They represent the maximum of crop promise.

Enters Crop Thrill Zone.

Chicago, April 16.—Our wheat reports continue high and the April 15 condition is above 90. Wheat, however, now enters the crop thrill zone and the new crop months are never a good sale at this period.

There is the subtle expectation of frosts in May by one weather forecaster and the Foster hot April spell is now due to be succeeded by cold spells later this month.

Any dry spell will raise apprehension, as the first three months of 1914 were largely dry. January was the driest month in many years and 75 per cent of the reporting stations of the United States show small to very large moisture deficiencies for February and March.

Late in March and early April there came a fairly good wet season at the right moment. The northwest does not receive a large waterfall in February and March, but even so large sections show deficiency.

The amount of required downfall in the big winter wheat states enlarges to two and a half to three inches. Our southwest correspondents point to forward condition of the wheat plant and its demand for large supplies of rain. Corn market remains two-sided. The large primary corn receipts of the 1913-14 season suggest "corn is marketed," that the country is well cleaned up.

September corn has answered to the pressure of sales due to its vulnerable position in relation to the new crop promise. The nearer months have to weather the trials of delivery.

Pending the delivery adjustments of May 1 corn advances are questionable. Yet on corn belt statistics alone corn is not due to sell permanently in the lower sixties.

One more spell of weakness should about discount April oats bearishness. The creation of fancy low levels in oats right away is not justified.

Steel makers say that our securities will be a real purchase only when the European steel market and trade revives, so thoroughly are we "tinned" to Europe by tariff conditions.
